

A friend and mentor of mine died recently. Major General Jack Singlaub, USA (RET).

He was an extraordinary man during extraordinary times and his life of service marked by his 100 years of age at the time of his death were overall remarkable. He leaves behind a legacy of achievements that shaped the past century of American and World History.

Above all, Jack Singlaub was a man of enormous faith, a man of impeccable character, especially personal integrity and he demonstrated a special brand of leadership and courage as well as a gifted intellect that we rarely see in our uniformed military these days.

Jack was also a great statesman above all else. He always knew how history would shape events and he never allowed it to pass by without grabbing it by the horns and doing his part to shape it. All of Jack's actions were always for the betterment of our beloved country.

Lastly, Jack loved his family...especially his wife Joan.

She was Jack's true focus, his rock and foundation and their enduring love for each other kept them both fully engaged in their lives and those around them, excited about life and always true to each other.

They epitomize what is good and decent in a loving, faith-based relationship.

Sincerely,

Michael T. Flynn
LTG (R) USA